Nonfiction Reading: Learning and Recording New Information. Looking for an easy way to add nonfiction reading and composition to your Language Arts? This series of workbooks may just be the ticket: reasonably priced, informative, and easy to use. The fifth-grade workbook provides opportunities for students to read, analyze, and respond to nonfiction text, with guided activities that help them develop comprehension skills and strategies. The workbook includes a variety of nonfiction genres, such as science, social studies, and literature, to engage students in diverse reading experiences. It also includes a glossary, word list, and teaching suggestions to help teachers integrate nonfiction reading into their curriculum. With its clear and concise explanations, this workbook is an excellent resource for reinforcing nonfiction reading skills in the classroom.